

Hi Nat!

I want to say so much - and generally do not have a hard time coming up with the words. But with what I say - I do not want to hurt you in any way. I think you are an absolutely wonderful lady - and Chris is a beautiful young man. I also know you have been hurt by loving the wrong men in your past.

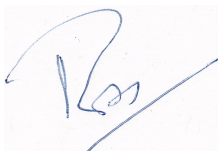

You hurt me tremendously today with what you called me. I am not a liar or a cheater - and everyone that I have met at the food bank knows this and my true character.

This isn't the first time you have hurt me, Nat. I have gone to a lot of work to write my very heartfelt and deep messages to you - in an effort to help you to understand me - and you haven't even made the time to read them. As a result - you don't really understand me - and I can't go on with us like this - because you don't have faith - real faith - in me or God.

The real life is a spiritual life. It is all that matters. I know that I am precisely who I am and who God wants me to be at this time - and that is a really great person - who loves and wants to help everyone. I can't live a physical life like you live. I refuse to lock my doors. Because I know God protects me - always. I will not go to a doctor for whatever ailments I have - because I know God can cure me - and will cure me of all things - those things on my back - my hearing - my eyesight...

So - Nat - in this universe - our time has come to an end. But in a Parallel Universe it continues and our love grows. God will always keep you connected to me - and will enable you to go to this universe always. I hope with all my heart that we can be great friends in this universe - and that I may continue to watch on as Chris overcomes all challenges you and he face and becomes the wonderful young man that I know it is God's intention to make of him.

I will always love you, Nat.
