

Dearest Nat,

You have just left here - and instructed me not to email, messenger or call you. I will honour your wishes - even though this is the farthest thing my heart wants to do.

You called me an asshole - like your first two husbands - and this hurts me tremendously. I went into this with the best of intentions - as I truly believed/knew that this is what Noel and Norah wanted for me - to be happy and fulfilled in ways I never imagined possible for my life. This 6 weeks was easily the greatest time of my last 20 years - and while I have much more to thank you for than just this - that is a start.

There is no other human being on the planet like me - or even close - Nat. We are all unique - but my story is different. I know I am Jesus Christ returned. This touches every element of my life - and my proximity to God is very sacred to me. It causes me to do many things which are contrary to the ways of man - and to think many things also - likewise.

You did an amazing job of accepting me as I am - Nat - and I cry as I think of how far you went to make me feel good - and that it was not enough.

God isn't very good, Nat. He is Great! The Greatest!

You are a true follower and lover of Jesus Christ - and he will not let you hurt and suffer for long. I don't know God's (Noel's and Norah's) complete plan for your/our life - but I do know that They have great plans for you! Hopefully very soon! Maybe Jason Momoa?!

As I mentioned - I will not send this to you. I will write to you everyday - to demonstrate my love for and commitment to you and Chris - and will keep all the letters on the private page I have created for you.

All my love,
